EQUIPPING THE NEXT GENERATION OF MISSIONARY AVIATORS

Blast from the Past.

Have you ever asked yourself, is it worth it? Have you ever toiled and wondered if what you are doing makes a difference? Many times we do not get answers to these questions, but we continue as He called us, methodically working to achieve His goals while trusting our Savior that His will has been done. That sums up most of our career.

We, along with you, invest heavily in others, preparing them for a life of service. Many of these young people do not have the life experience to understand the sacrifices, sleepless nights, hours of prayer, stress, finances, and commitment ministry requires.

Recently, we received a note from someone we had poured into decades ago. Today, they are serving in ministry and pouring into others. They now understand the sacrifice at God's command and the commitment needed. They thanked us for our devotion, realizing that God used us, and you, to shape them into who they are today.

This is what we want: to see those we invest in grow, serve, and ultimately invest in others so that God's reach continues to multiply. Thank you for praying, giving, and standing with us in this calling. Without you we would not be able to complete this ministry God has given us.

Training the Next Generation.

Heather has had a fun start to the school year at Blake's high school. She loves being with the kids and building relationships, and often has students that stop her in stores, on the street while walking our dog, or even at church. And this August, despite the terrible fires that whipped through Spokane, our church still managed to have church camp though not quite as planned. However, God still worked and the kids had fun. Praise God for that!

We are still meeting with several Proclaim families as they navigate establishing their support team like you. Would you pray for them as many are below the level needed to support their family and do ministry? In August Heather also had the opportunity to teach a few class sessions at Moody, and this continues to be a joy for her. She loves to be with and teach the students.

This fall Travis has been working with 3rd year students who are trying to get their FAA aircraft powerplant license. In October he will return to training maintenance specialists who are 4th and 5th year students for more specialized training. We had two Maintenance Specialists graduate over the summer. One is working commercially for experience based off a ministry's recommendation, and the other is doing instruction at Moody for a time before heading off into the field.

Blake's 17th Birthday

Praising.

- Blake's successful surgery
- Good start to a new school year at Moody
- God using past students to make more disciples for Him
- Opportunities for Heather to teach at Moody

Praying.

- Bryce making life decisions
- Blake's hand healing from a break
- Blake deciding on career or field of study
- Travis instructing in a different department
- Moody staff who are working at building their support team

Family Update.

Bryce has been selling cars for the last 2 years but is looking at making some big life decisions and would appreciate prayer. Sydney is still baking and doing well. She has been training new people in recent months and came home the other day excited because she got to develop a new cupcake recipe that was loved by the bakery and the customers. At times she is the only one at the bakery preparing everything for the day. Blake turned 17 in July and started his junior year this fall. Unfortunately, this summer he fell while skating and broke a bone in his hand. He had successful surgery in July and is still healing. The break takes 2-4 months of wearing a cast to heal. He's still playing this trumpet at school despite the limited use of his hand. Where there is a will, there is a way.

We thank you for being on mission and joining ministry with us. We couldn't serve without you by our side. You play an important role in keeping us here through your prayers and finances and we appreciate you!
